You send out a pulse that registers the existence of a technological object. You receive no information beyond the presence or absence of an object. You can choose to ignore technology you're fully aware of, such as the ones on you and your allies.

Heightened (4th) You're able to pinpoint the source of the highest level technological object. Like for an imprecise sense, you don't learn the exact location, but can narrow down the source to within a 5-foot cube (or nearest if larger than that)
